

Shasta springs

SHASTA SPRINGS

SISKIYOU COUNTY
CALIFORNIA

NOTICE—Patronage of persons suffering from a contagious or any objectionable disease not accepted.

Elevation 2800 feet.

Mean Temperature Summer Months 62 degrees.

AN IDEAL MOUNTAIN SUMMER RESORT—Open for Guests, April 15th.

SHASTA SPRINGS Hotel and Cottage System nesting among the pines and firs afford a magnificent view of Mount Shasta and has been designed as an ideal spot for rest and recreation in the open air with free and unstinted use of the famous "Shasta" Water. The location of Shasta Springs is unrivaled, being in a forest of pine, cedar and firs that envelope the base of snow-crowned "Shasta" on a plateau about 300 feet high above the upper Sacramento River.

An incline Scenic Railway connects the Spring and Railroad Depot with the Hotel and Cottage System on the plateau.

An electric plant furnishes light to the rooms and throughout the grounds.

Rooms en suite or single. Nicely furnished cottages for families. Excellent bathing facilities. Running water—hot and cold—in bed rooms. Large amusement hall and games.

Post Office. Telephone Office. Telegraph Office. Wells, Fargo Express. Railroad, Ticket and Freight Office.

Two trains leave San Francisco daily—morning and evening—Fare, $12.00 round trip, good for six months.

Rate, per day, $3.00 and upward. Special rates for families and permanent guests.

Address: MT. SHASTA MINERAL SPRINGS COMPANY,

Sixth and Brannan Streets, San Francisco.

Shasta Springs, Calif.

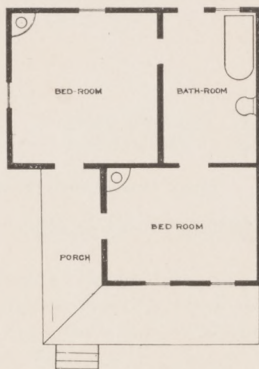

NOTICE—Rooms engaged in advance will be charged for whether used or not.

(OVER FOR DIAGRAM OF COTTAGES)

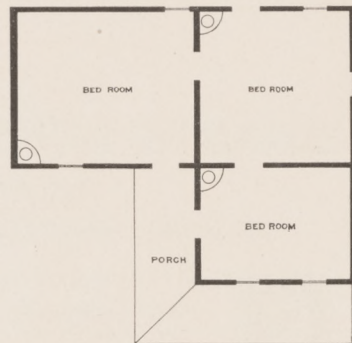

3 Room Cottage-with Bath

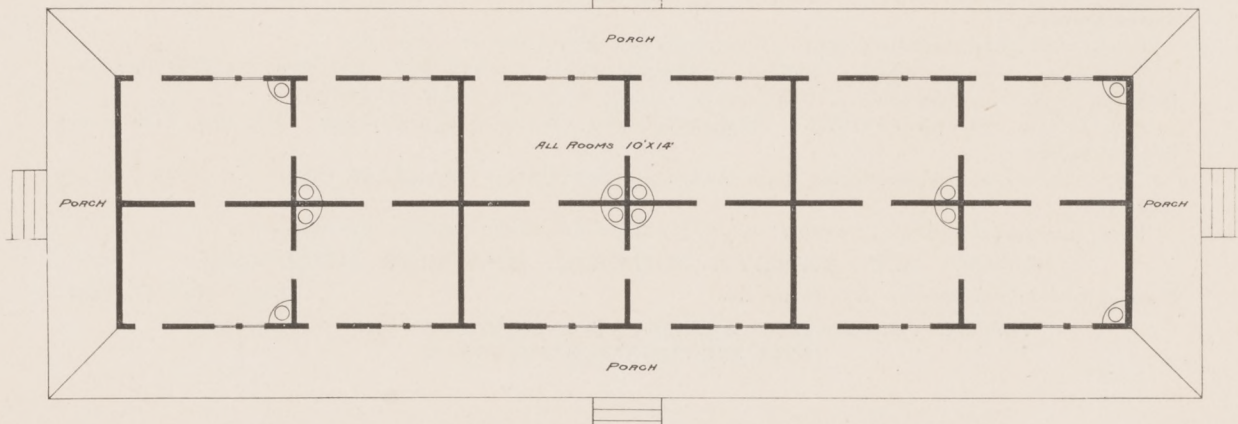

2 Room Cottage- WITH BATH

3 Room Cottage WITHOUT BATH

COTTAGE L 12 ROOMS - SINGLE & ENSUITE

GROUND PLAN OF THE DIFFERENT STYLES OF COTTAGES AT SHASTA SPRINGS.

An Invitation

*Arrayed in the richest garments nature ever wore,
Bedecked in the finest gems her bosom ever bore,
With lips still moist from the morning dew,
With cheeks of a sunset-tinted hue,
From Shasta's dome she waits and beckons you:*

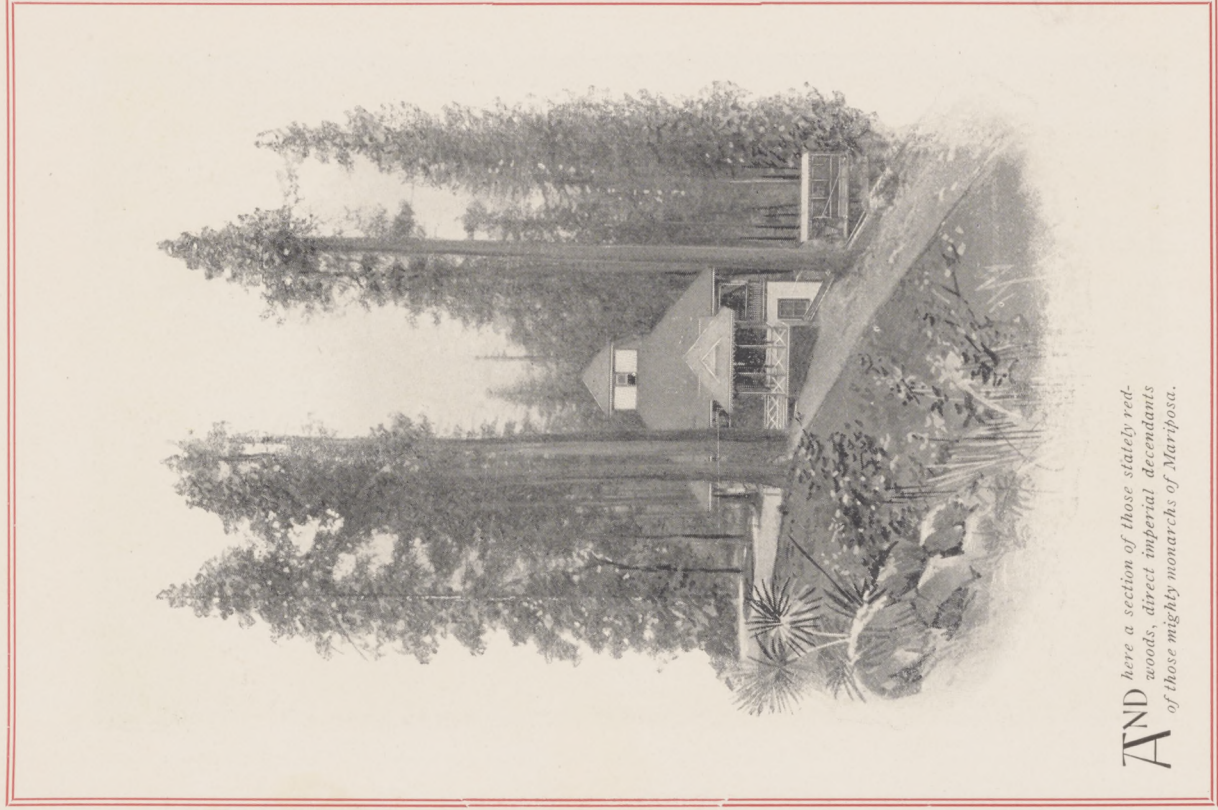

*"Come lay your head in my lap and find rest,
Come, where the flowers bloom and birds seek a nest,
Come to my storehouse of pleasure and health—
Come for your share of my bounteous wealth—
Come lie in the shade of my forests and sleep
While these mighty monarchs a vigil shall keep.
Come where the sunshine and snow on the mountains
Supply the sweet nectar that flows from my fountains,
And just as that sunshine is melting the snows
It will soften your cares, tribulations and woes."*

Come, listen to the songs of the birds and hear the laughter of the waters.

See yonder bubbling spring! It comes from the womb of mother earth, down, down in those mysterious regions where the same old alchemist has for centuries of centuries been prescribing for poor humanity by mixing up the ingredients of these marvelous waters, the only remedies known in Nature's drug store.

AND here a section of those stately redwoods, direct imperial descendants of those mighty monarchs of Mariposa.

You have heard the roar of the great Niagara, you have stood palsied amidst those towering palisades in the Colorado Canyon, you have marvelled at the wonders of the mighty Yellowstone and stood spell-bound at your first glimpse of the imposing Yosemite; but right here in the lap of the Sierras, here at the foot of old Mount Shasta nature has in miniature duplicated all of these marvelous wonders of the world.

Even "Mirror Lake" has been reproduced.

The Bridal Veil Falls of the Yosemite are here duplicated.

MT. SH

MT. SHASTA.

Now before you is another glimpse of the Yosemite in miniature.

Here is a natural geyser even more picturesque and beautiful than those in the Yellowstone

SO DRINK, friend or stranger, drink—these waters are for you. An annual pilgrimage to them was intended in the great adjustment of creation. You from the parched, dry valleys, come! Come, let these mists from the falls cool those hot aching temples of yours.

YOU from the seaside, come, come out of the fog, climb up to this summit of sunshine. Come, stand among the kings of the forest, and see how trouble and care will dwarf, diminish and disappear.

COME! Be a boy again, and with rod and reel loiter along the banks of yonder sparkling stream, because there are "speckled beauties" there. Come, again feel the thrill that comes with the tightening of the line, the bending of the rod and the whirl of the reel.

SHASTA SPRINGS, 327 miles north of San Francisco, are situated on the main Overland Line of the Southern Pacific Company known as the Shasta Route, and are therefore easily accessible from all parts of California, and, indeed, from every section of the country. A train leaves Portland for San Francisco every morning and every evening—the morning train reaching Shasta Springs in time for dinner, and the evening train in time for breakfast. The same service is in effect north-bound from San Francisco, the morning train reaching Shasta Springs about 9:30 in the evening, and the night train arriving there about the same hour the following morning.

The traveler from Southern California on his way to Shasta Springs has a wide choice of train service; he can leave Los Angeles on the Coast Line Limited at 8:00 A. M. and reach San Francisco at 10:45 the following morning, spend the night there and take the morning train to Shasta Springs; or,

Leave Los Angeles at noon and reach San Francisco at seven next morning, going straight on within an hour to Shasta; or,

He can take the Owl train leaving Los Angeles at 5 P. M. and arrive at San Francisco at 9:45 the following morning, spend the day in the City, and take the night train to Shasta; or again,

He can leave Los Angeles about 10 P. M., arrive at Sacramento the next afternoon and take the evening train north.

A passenger from the east will naturally stop at Sacramento, the capital of the State, and take the connecting train northward through the Sacramento Valley for Shasta Springs, either via Roseville and Marysville, or via Davis and the west side.

The Southern Pacific Overland trains carry dining cars, chair cars, and some of them observation cars.

Enough has been said to show that wherever you are, you can reach Shasta Springs quickly, comfortably and directly, with something of interest and beauty to look upon during the entire journey, and reach the climax of beauty and grandeur under the shadow of the

CROWNED KING OF ALL THIS WESTERN COUNTRY, MOUNT SHASTA.

Flattering Favors of Famous Men as to the Merits of SHASTA WATER

I find it delicious

Thomas A. Brite

Another treasure from that wonderful country

W. D. Dody

I have tried it. It is good

J. C. Platt

I have tried it, and find it excellent

Louis Sherry

I have sampled ^{it} ~~the water~~, and find it choice

W. R. Kaffner

I find ~~it~~ a pleasant ~~table water~~

Engene Kelly

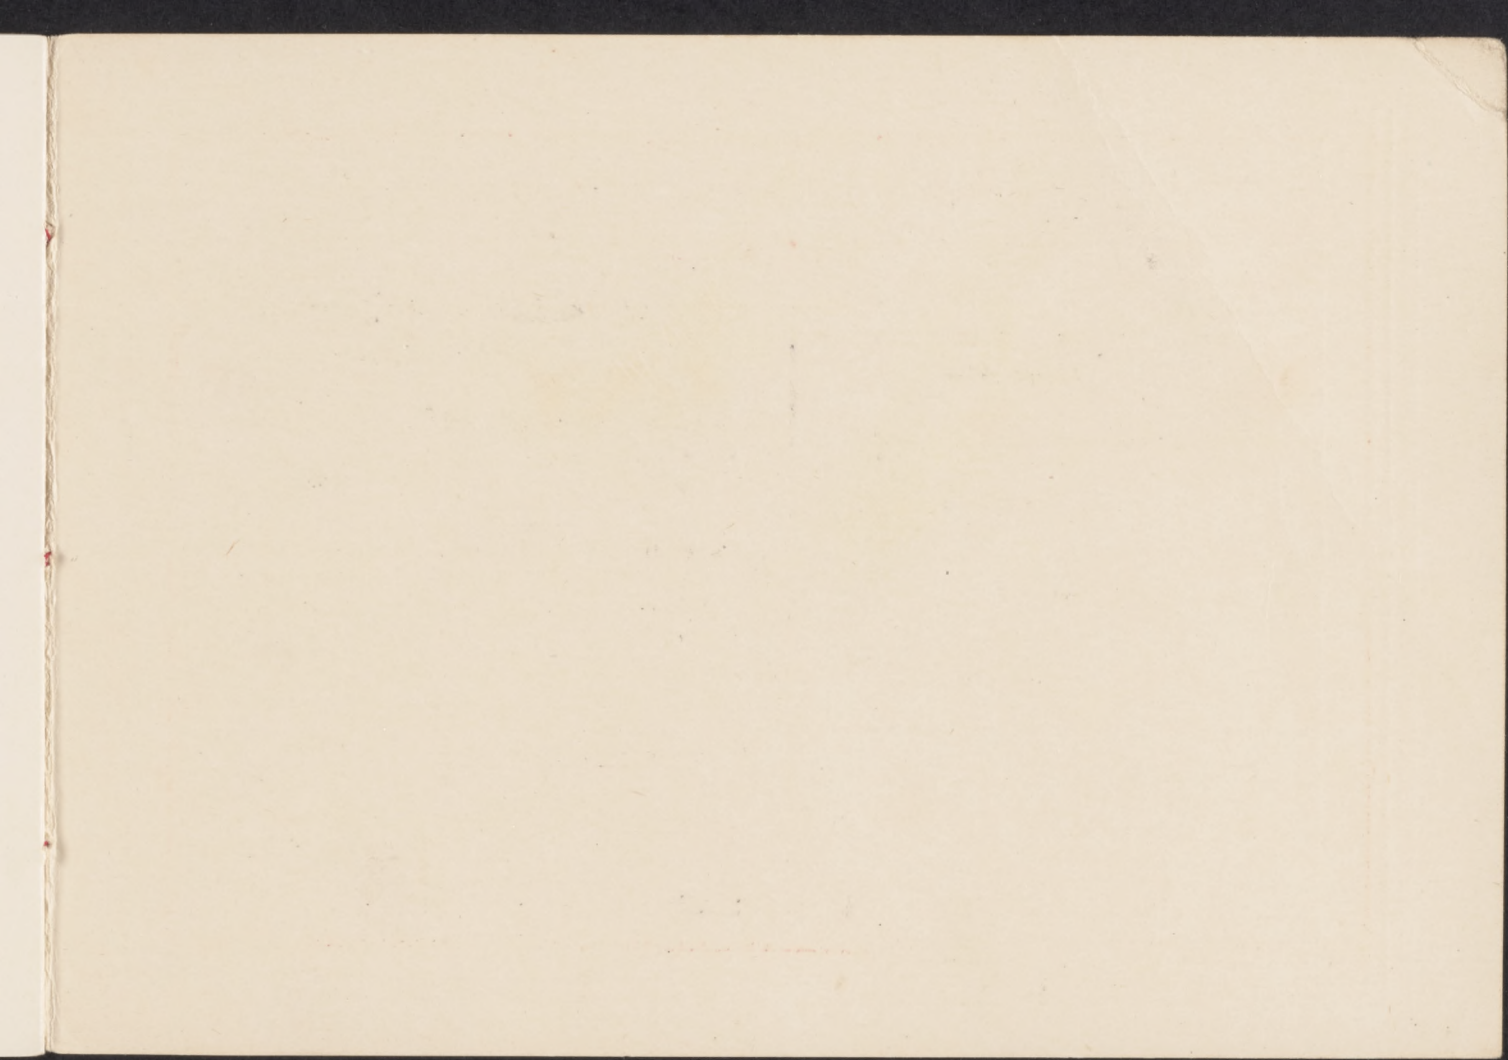

It is beautifully clear, and appears to be very healthful.
California is certainly a most wonderful country.
Whatever it produces is always the best of its kind

Henry Clews

I have tried ~~it~~, and like it very much

Henry D. Purdy

To Many Californians SHASTA SPRINGS will be a revelation

SHASTA SPRINGS

Hotel and cottage system on plateau above, connected with railroad station below by Scenic Railway and trail.